COACHING EDUCATION PROGRAM

Program Description and Objectives

The Coaching Education Program is designed to train highly qualified specialists in various sports. Its main objective is to ensure the effective organization of individual and group training sessions for athletes, the proper development of technical and tactical preparation, the improvement of physical and psychological resilience, and adherence to ethical standards in a professional sporting environment.

The program equips students with skills in athlete selection, consideration of psychological and physiological characteristics, management of the training process, and development of individual and group training programs. It also provides a systematic approach to strengthening athletes' psychological resilience, developing emotional readiness, improving components of physical fitness, and monitoring athletes' functional condition.
